Mr. HENRY PARKES moved that the clause be postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

This clause was verbally amended, on the motion of Mr. HENRY PARKES, so as to provide that where a licensing magistrate had jurisdiction under the Act no notice of the time application for a license should be made as in the original clause, but that the magistrate should only deal with matters of urgency. The clause was amended and then agreed to.

A licensing court may adjourn from time to time to the same or any other courthouse or building within the licensing district. If at any adjournment there shall be a difference of opinion among the members of the court, the majority shall be the law.

The clause was amended and then agreed to.

Mr. JACOB objected to the power given to the police magistrate to have both an ordinary and a licensing court, believing that it would be far better if two magistrates should be appointed, as in ordinary cases, there should be no order made.

Mr. O'CONNOR also objected to this provision in the clause, believing it to be unfair to give the licensing magistrate the power to have both an ordinary and a licensing court, as in ordinary cases, there should be no order made.

Mr. STURTON said that evidence on the management would be beyond the scope of the inquiry, which had already to do with the rules.

Mr. BROWNE thought a copy of the commission and instructions should be laid on the table.

Mr. W. F. FOWLER, as a matter of personal explanation, said he would have been present in the division on the Chinese Bill on the previous day if he had not been led, from the statement of the Colonial Secretary, to believe it was the intention of the Government to proceed with the Chinese Bill if it was completed.

Mr. HENRY PEARCE said it had been the intention of the Government to proceed with the Chinese Bill without interruption, but their intention had been changed by the necessity for dealing at once with the Chinese Bill.

Mr. CLARKE replied, and the motion for adjournment was put and negatived.

Mr. G. M. HOSKINS to introduce a bill for the extension of the power of erecting divisions of lands of towns and villages, and the limits of suburban plans, and the bill was subsequently brought on and Leave was also given to Mr. BYRNES to bring in a bill for the amendment of the Impounding Act in certain particulars.

On the motion of SIR HENRY PARKES, it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council setting forth the reasons of the House for accepting some and rejecting other of the amendments of the Council in the Chinese Influx Restriction Bill.

The House then went into committee for the further consideration of the Licensing Bill. Clause 10, as to the power of the provincial licensing committee, was postponed. Clause 11, directing when a license might be held, was verbally amended and agreed to. Clause 12, giving power to the courts to adjourn, and enacting that in any case where the votes were equal the chairman should have a casting in addition to his original vote, was verbally amended. An amendment by Mr. JAMES, to deprive the chairman of the casting vote, was defeated by 16 to 15.

Another amendment by Mr. McLAUGHLIN, on the same question, was negatived by 46 to 11, and the clause was Clause 13, respecting the hearing of applications for, or the removal, removal, or transfer of license, provided a lengthened debate. Mr. Ruten moved a proviso insisting that no application for a new license should be granted if the applicant had been convicted by a criminal court that the application was justified by the requirements of the neighborhood, or the want of better accommodation for travellers. The proviso was negatived on division by 48 to 17, and the clause was agreed to with an immaterial amendment.

Clause 14 and 15, enacting that every certificate of marriage should be produced, and unless the required fee were paid, and that license for business should be carried on by executors and others under certain circumstances, were agreed to without debate or division.

Clause 16—providing for the transfer of all the privileges of a license to the husband of a female licensee, unless he should, within fourteen days after their marriage, disclaim the transfer, in which case the license would become void—was debated and carried on division by 48 to 4.

Clause 17, denoting licensed persons who might be coarse language, and clause 18, authorizing the appointment of a committee to inquire into the conduct of Classes 19 and 20, defining the duties of inspectors and imposing penalties for bribery or attempted bribery were amended and agreed to.

Sub-section authorizing any superintendent, inspector, sub-inspector, or sergeant of police, or member of constabulary as prescribed by the bill, might demand entrance to any licensed premises during the day or night was debated, and amended in certain particulars, but before it was disposed of progress was reported, and leave was given to sit again on Wednesday next.

The Navigation Act Amendment Bill was received from the Legislative Council with amendments.

The House adjourned at two minutes to 1 a.m. 14 p.m. this day (Friday).

The reference made by the PREMIER to the usual conduct of the House of Lords, by way of guidance to our Legislative Council in dealing with the Chinese Bill, might have been to the purpose if he could have adduced of Lords has given way, though against its inclination and judgment, has been as to substantial principles of legislation. It can any case be brought forward what the House of Lords, having accepted the principle of a bill, but having rejected certain clauses that were superfluous, and that were against the comity of nations, were compelled by the House of Commons to swallow those also? Unless such a case can be produced no parallel can be established. The principle of the Chinese Bill is restrictive, not prohibitive. The object is, not to put the Chinese under an absolute ban, but to prevent their coming here in dangerous numbers. That object is secured by the tonnage clause, which clause, even as amended by the Council, would limit the possible arrivals to about three hundred a year, and that is not equal to the present number of departures.

principle of the bill, and left that principle effective, but took out certain other clauses which are repulsive. No candid or humane man will deny that it is offensive and insulting to a Chinaman to levy a poll-tax on him simply in virtue of his nationality, and to compel him to produce his certificate as often as any constable may ask him for it. Nothing but an imperious necessity could justify us in making such invidious distinctions towards a people whose only crime is that they are trying to better their condition by honest industry, and whom, as a nation, the British, as a nation, have treated very cruelly. Every consideration of self-respect and of justice should lead us, while protecting ourselves sufficiently, to do so with the very minimum of discourtesy. The Legislative Council has drawn this proper distinction,

The COLONIAL SECRETARY did not pretend to say that the bill would not be effective without the poll-tax clauses. The only shadow of defence for them was made by a private member, who urged that without such clauses, the Chinese might come across the borders from the other colonies. But this argument is answered immediately by the statement that the other colonies are all adopting tonnage restrictions also, and sion could not take place. The real avowed reason for the clauses is that they satisfy popular passion. The people want them—that is to say, the noisy part of the people—and the Government is disposed to humour them in this matter. The assertion of the COLONIAL SECRETARY that the working-classes require to be protected by these clauses is a piece of hypocritical cant, because they are not wanted as protection. That is given by the tonnage clause.

of the Central Board of Health. Sir,—In answer to your telegram of to-day, I have to inform you that I met all trains and inspect all passengers before leaving their carriages, and thus have an opportunity of examining any invalid or sickly-looking person who may arrive here, according to my instructions from Sydney, second-class passengers leaving the station. ness, and also a gold emblem, was used. The address was tastefully decorated by the happy relations between Mr. Brown and the brigade during the 25 years it had been associated with it, and the very high honor which it had received.

The emblem consisted of an eagle with its wings spread, perched upon a shield. The shield was divided into four quarters, each containing a different symbol. The top left quarter contained a cross, the top right a star, the bottom left a wreath, and the bottom right a scroll. The scroll contained the words "UNITED STATES ARMY".

Mr. Downes is in appropriate terms, and is prepared to appoint Mr. Richard Moore, of England, as assistant superintendent, and to ensure that no interference would not interfere with the work of the Government. A number of cases were taken, and the Board of Health consider any further precautions should be taken, I should be glad to carry out any suggestions as far as lies in my power. I may add that large numbers are being vaccinated and re-vaccinated on this side of the river, but so far I have done very few revaccinations on the Victorian side, as persons do not care to pay for it, and do not yet seem impressed with any necessity for it. SYDNEY COFFEE PALACE HOTEL COMPANY, LIMITED.

The following report was adopted at the annual meeting held on Wednesday:—

immigration committee. Mr. would now call your attention to the balance-sheet submitted for your adoption. The gross profits for the year amount to $1191 34. 1d., with which it is proposed to write off the valuable assets of the company. Your directors have preferred adopting this course to declaring any dividend from the profits for the year. It will be seen that the profits of the company are not so large as might have been expected, but a variety of causes have operated against a more successful issue.

Mr. Brown with a framed address and also a gold emblem, intended to be worn on the breast. The address was tastefully written in cursive, and referred to the happy relations existing between the Fire Brigades of Melbourne and the other members of the brigade during the 25 years of peace that he had been connected with it, and the very high position in which he was held. The emblem consisted of a shield, with a scroll bearing the word "Superintendent" and ornamented with leaves. From this depended a circular length of hose, with scrolls and tassels, and a banner, bearing the motto "Protecting a fireman's implements." The coat-piece was adorned by the Australian coat-of-arms, while the lower part of the design consisted of a model of the bridge, on which the whole was to be worn. The dress was in gold, and the design had a very chaste appearance. The coat of the emblem, which was manufactured by Mr. Brown, was of the best, and cost £20. Mr. Brown, in his remarks, said that the design was the work of an experienced friend from Australia, an assistant superintendent, but that such assistance was not required, as the members of the brigade were all well-to-do citizens, influencing those of Mr. and Mrs. Brown. "The Committee," he said, "will be glad to hear that the bill passed during the evening that the passing of the bill relating to the Fire Brigades would result in the appointment of a superintendent, and that the Fire Brigades

THE TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL.

The Trades and Labour Council met last night at their house, the Royal Hyde Park Hotel, Bathurst, and were presided over by Mr. B. Jones, the president, in the chair. Before following affiliated societies were represented:—Carpenters and joiners (two societies), ironworkers, the Seamen's Union, boilermakers, the Newcastle Hotel League, bricklayers, quarry-men, plasterers, curriers, coal miners (River Hunter district), coopers, the Union glassmakers, and grocers. Mr. Roylance, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were duly confirmed. The correspondence of the fortnight was read and received. The Sanitary and boiler inspection committee, it was reported, had been appointed, and the proceedings of the committee of a preliminary character. Mr. Roylance reported progress in behalf of the Anti-Chinese Immigration committee. Mr. Hayes, in reference to the same, said he would be glad to have the harbourage at Stirling in a South Sea

In winter, and no danger comes from night in summer, the smoke can be stopped, and any necessary repairs made. In addition to the ventilator, there is in use the compressing and expelling apparatus that was employed in making the tunnel, and notwithstanding these means and care bestowed on the fire in the locomotives, there is reason to fear that the present criticism would prove insufficient in case of even a small invasion of the traffic. — Electrician paper.
